FAA SAFETY BRIEFING

The July/August 2017 issue of FAA Safety Briefing explores several key facets of the new BasicMed rule, which offers pilots an alternative to the FAA's medical qualification process for third class medical certificates.

Under BasicMed, a pilot will be required to complete a medical education course every two years, undergo a medical examination every four years, and comply with aircraft and operating restrictions. https://www.faa.gov/news/safety\_briefing/

TOWER TALK

We would like to announce the arrival of Mr. John Hanf as our new Tower Manager at HND. You may remember John as he previously worked at HND as a controller. John brings with him a wealth of experience, and providing a safe and friendly operating environment for our customers is his priority. It is our pleasure to add him to the HND team!

From John: The tower controllers have noticed that pilots have -on occasion- failed to fully exit the runway when turning off. Please be aware that when an aircraft exits a runway, it is still considered to be on the runway if any part of the aircraft is over the hold line (on the "runway side" of the line). Failing to completely clear the runway safety area could force controllers to issue a 'go around' command to an aircraft on short final for that runway. The proper procedure is to cross the hold line, then stop the aircraft once completely clear of the runway. Please do not continue across or to turn onto Taxiway Alpha (unless instructed by the controller to do so).

If there are any questions or concerns for the tower, I welcome you to contact me at john.hanf@serco-na.com.
